

Our new western rug collection pile rugs are handmade with 100% natural dyes and handspun wools.

Our modern collection pile rugs are handmade with 100% natural dyes and handspun wools.

From 1910, this old Sumak was made in Azerbaijan with the finest handspun wool.

One of many unique stripe designs in our collection of handmade rugs.

This Kilim Gashgai from 1880 was used to line the inside of a yurt. When hung on the walls, it protected those inside from wind and cold as they stopped during the trek from Azerbaijan to Iran.

This rug is a reproduction of an antique Mahal design from the early 1910s.

Kismet Rug Gallery

A rug is not just a rug at Kismet. With an array of sizes, designs and techniques, every rug from Kismet is bound to bring rich color, texture and pattern to any room. Every hand-woven carpet at Kismet is either made of handspun wool or wool and silk blends colored by natural dyes from around the world, and the vast variety of styles is sure to accommodate any budget. Featuring contemporary, antique, western, tribal and traditional rugs that range in size from small to palatial, Kismet's extensive showroom features a rug capable of transforming any house into a home.

For over 100 years, the Kismet family has delivered the world's finest rugs. In 1990 they continued their family tradition and opened their Jackson Hole showroom, quickly becoming the area's premier rug gallery and leader in fine antique and masterpiece rugs.

With a knowledgeable staff eager to explain the rich history and stories behind every rug, shopping at Kismet Rug Gallery provides a fascinating education and enriching experience of the ancient art form. From soft pastels to vibrant jewel tones, from modest to generous budgets, buyers won't find a better selection of top-quality rugs. Great rooms start at Kismet.

Kismet offers many styles of rugs:

- Western
